THE HORRORS OF WAR.

Modern warfare, which must appear a repulsive monster to those engaged therein, when they contemplate the wreck and havoc, the bloodshed and agony which march beside it and follow its van, assumes a guise still more terrible if it be true that "no less than three thousand Russians have become demented as the result of the fighting in Port Arthur and round Mukden."

We know that sudden great excitement is liable to unbalance excitable minds, and render them, for the time, insane. In the deadly struggle in which the combatants have been engaged, and which seems to have pressed so heavily upon so many men, excitement is not responsible for the havoc wrought, so much as the severe and prolonged tension, to which the defenders of Port Arthur have been subjected, and subjected, too, after the star of hope had set for them forever.

To those who would have welcomed their relatives, even though they returned uncrowned with laurels, and shorn of their boasting, the meeting must be terrible, when at Odessa or at St. Petersburg, the "Whampoa" disem-barks its cargo of Russian soldiers, either imbecile or insane. The news is terrible enough when the word comes that the father is fallen. It is tenfold more distressful, when he returns a mental wreck, to be pitied and avoided.

Many painters have been attracted towards war, by means of which they might be able to give expression to their genius. Some authors have followed in their wake. For the most part, these have endeavored to, and have often succeeded in clothing their subject with a robe of splendour, and crowning it with an aureole of glory. In plain blat opposition to all this, Vereshchagin, the famous Russian painter, who, by a strange irony of fate, as if the god of war had sent forth a Nemesis to avenge the deep-seated antagonism, with which the painter regarded his ascendency, lost his life by the sinking of a Russian battleship outside Port Arthur, contrived to produce war pictures so realistic and horror-provoking, that, at one time, it was said, the emperor forbade their exhibition. Yet the famous Russian painter was right, and could his bleached bones, at the bottom of the China Sea, speak to-day, they would yet asseverate the same truth he taught when alive. The days are past when statesmen, who are responsible for the safety and prosperity of a nation, wittingly throw down the gaundum of defiance in the face of another with whom a difficulty has cropped up. War is a terrible game. It can be prosecuted only by an enormous expenditure, which often amounts to extravagance. It demands the sacrifice of thousands of lives, each of which is dear to some one, though the brave soldier may relinquish his one possession with a chivalrous courage. It involves tens of thousands of homes in gloom and anguish, being in this regard no respecter of persons. In the mansions of the rich and the homes of the poor alike,—though in the latter the clouds are the colder and the denser—the survivors must clothe themselves in emblems of mourning, and look in vain for the faces, and hearken for voices, which were as dear to them as life itself. It is true that, yet, as things are, war appears, to be a grim necessity.

There are men who prefer total privation, and even death to dishonour. So war with all its evils, is better than peace, in which there is nothing to be seen but usurpation and injustice. But while this is admitted, the fact remains, in all its hideous repugnance, that war is terrible beyond words, and works miseries, both to the victor and vanquished—but upon the latter especially —too horrible to contemplate. Misery and ruin to myriads are in the blast which announces the approach of the destructive demon of war. Perhaps no individual mind can adequately comprehend what is meant by ten thousand men being in hospitals at the same time.

We can however survey a single ward, in which perhaps fifty wounded soldiers may be lying, many of whom are helpless and dying. We can count the bleached faces; look into the deep-set eyes; listen to the incoherent speech.

We can, unless we can alleviate the physical and mental anguish, with averted tongue. We can multiply this ward by twenty, and the result again by ten; and when we have done this we shall have utterly failed to grasp the situation and appraise the sufferings of those who fought at the bidding of an emperor, to attain an ideal in which they had no interest, or for a glory which for them, was discovered to be a mirage. Nor is this all,—non-combatants suffer. A short time ago a school-master in Japan, who taught a large school of boys, requested the scholars, who had come to school that morning without breakfast, to stand up. He was horrified to find that more than sixty per cent of the boys rose at his bidding. Their mothers were compelled to deny themselves, and even their children of bread; that they might send funds to the fathers of the lads who were fighting at the front. This sacrifice may have been accepted without demurring, even willingly, but, none the less, it throws a sidelight on the horrors of war, which are saddening and shocking. We could hope that the day is fast approaching when this barbarous way of settling international disputes shall have passed away for ever when difficulties, should they arise, shall be settled absolutely by arbitration.

Many may regard this as nothing but a dream. We believe that this very war, with all its horrors, will bring that day appreciably nearer, and when it has dawned, all humane and sensible people will rejoice.

LAXATIVE.

THE NEW IDEAL PURGATIVE.
FOR ALL LIVER, KIDNEY
AND HEMORRHOID
TROUBLES.

RECOMMENDED BY THE WORLD'S FINEST PHYSICIANS.

LAXATIVE is the mildest aperient known. It is pleasant in taste, not drastic but certain in action and even in large doses is harmless. Laxative being non-irritant will be found a great boon, to ladies especially, and in cases where the kidneys are irritable or diseased. Laxative is strongly recommended by the Continental Authorities and is being largely used in the London hospitals. Messrs A. S. WATSON & Co. Ltd., have been appointed the Hongkong Agents for this preparation.

PROSELYTISM AND PARSEES.

The Parsees have once more shown that exclusiveness and aloofness which forms one of their strongest points of similarity to the Jews, says The Friend of India. For some time past the community had been agitated by the question whether proselytism from other creeds should or should not be admitted to the Zoroastrian faith. As long ago as 1913 a committee was appointed to inquire into the matter, and its report has just been submitted to a meeting held at Bombay. Expert opinion had arrived at the conclusion that there is nothing in the teaching of Zoroastrianism forbidding proselytism; but the Committee, notwithstanding, decided that conversion to Zoro-trianism was inadvisable and disadvantageous. One section of the community in deed favours proselytism; but the trustees of the communal property have officially declared that only those who were born of Parsee parents should be admitted into the Parsee fire-temple, towers of silence, etc. The step was applauded by the orthodox section, but the progressive party declared that the trustees had 'poussed the sleeping serpent and appeared to have sown the seeds of discord in the community.' The question was finally decided in the above-mentioned meeting which resolved that no proselytism of other faiths should be admitted into the Zoroastrian fold, because such admission would militate against the original unity and ancient traditions of the Parsee community. This resolution was carried amidst cheers and acclamations of joy. It may, of course, be gratifying to the narrow separatists to know that he belongs to a body of men admittance into which can only be obtained by birth. That has always been the feeling of narrow sects. But the impartial outsider cannot be expected to join in these acclamations of joy. Separatism is a bad thing, and the Parsees will find that out sooner or later, as the Jews have done. For a small community to live in a country and yet not be of it; but after twelve centuries of residence to regard it as a place of exile, it is not easy. Such isolation breeds suspicion on the part of the majority. When this isolation is paraded amidst cheers the danger becomes proportionately greater. No one can be intolerant with impunity. Intolerance breeds intolerance. Under the neutral British rule the Parsees have of course nothing to fear. But, though their immediate interests are secured, there may come a time when the unpopular which attends deliberate isolation will declare itself in a manner prejudicial to the very interests which the Parsee community strives to safeguard by the exclusion of outsiders.

KIDNEY DISEASE.

KIDNEY disease comes on quietly—may have been in the system for years before patient suspected the real cause of his trouble. There may have been headaches, limb aches, neuralgia, rheumatism, a nervous, irritable feeling, or a generally weak, tired feeling, weak heart, swelling of the feet, puffiness of the face, etc. He did not know that these were symptoms of kidney disease, and so he neglected the symptoms, and not the kidney. Thus the trouble kept growing worse, until disturbances of the water appeared, or there was gravel, or retention of urine, or backache—or some such plain sign of kidney trouble that there could be no doubt.

PERHAPS YOUR TROUBLE IS KIDNEY DISEASE.

Don't's backache & kidney pills should be taken at the first sign of anything wrong. There is no other safe way, because kidney disease is the most dangerous of all. It is not a disease of the kidneys, but of the blood, and the kidneys help them to properly perform that most important of all functions—the filtering of the blood—help them to flush out, and carry away with the surplus water, all these impurities which the blood gathers up in its circuit of the body. In no other way can you be well.

All the chief chemists and medicine dealers sell Duan's Backache Kidney Pills, price 2/6 for 1 box, or 13/6 for 6 boxes; or the medicine may be had, post free, on receipt of price, direct from the proprietor, The Foster-McClellan Co., 8, Wall Street, Oxford-street, London, England, who will also send a Sample Box Free to anyone who writes for it and mentions this paper.
